Fenske, R. (Principal), "All of Us Exhibit Award," Sponsored by University of Maryland, Baltimore/ National Network of Library of Medicine, Federal, $1,963.00. (May 1, 2019 - April 30, 2020). Exhibitor at the Area Agency on Aging, Senior Lifestyles Expo. Oct 3, 2019 at the Greater Gulf States Fairground, Mobile, AL. There are over 1,200 seniors who attend this function. Health related brochures and information from the National Library of Medicine and the National Institutes of Health were distributed to create and an awareness of the rich and freely available resources for our elderly community. Ipads were used to demonstrate MedlinePlus and other databases from the National Library of Medicine and National Institutes of Health. Fenske, R. F. (Principal), "Technology Improvement Award #161 NNLM," Sponsored by University of Maryland, Baltimore/ National Network of Library of Medicine, Federal, $15,000.00. (May 1, 2018 - April 30, 2019). Continuing on PATHS Leading to Excellent Patient Care will allow patients and families of the University of South Alabama (USA) Medical Center and the High Risk OB/GYN and Well Baby units of the USA Children's & Women's Hospital to access quality health information through the use of Android tablets. Nurse educators and other health care professionals at both facilities will have a means to enhance the current individual educational needs of the patients, parents and family members by accessing the free electronic resources from the National Library of Medicine and the National Institutes of Health. Android tablets and rolling bedside stands will be purchased so patients have access to these resources. MedlinePlus, Drug Information Portal, and LactMed are a few that will be accessible so patients can locate information free of medical jargon, in their native language, and at a time when they can absorb the material. The tablets will be available at any time during their hospital stay. Printed brochures from the National Library of Medicine will also be distributed to patients. One-on-one sessions will be provided by the librarian in the USA Cardiac Clinic. This award would continue the work of a previous NNLM award received in November 2016 which enabled chronically ill children and their parents at USA Children's & Women's Hospital to access MedlinePlus and other NIH resources from tablets. By providing access to health information using multiple educational interventions, more patients in this health disparate community can take an active role in the understanding of their condition and become engaged in an interdisciplinary team approach to their medical care. The additional resources from NNLM will provide patients the ability to locate quality health information not only at the time of need, but beyond, thus improving their health outcomes. The project will document the efficacy of the various interventions by using evaluations and discharge surveys. UMB Fully Executed Agreement FX SUBagreement 1751-1.pdf

The Area Agency on Aging funds and oversees services for approximately 130, 000 persons 60 years of age and over in Mobile, Baldwin and Escambia Counties in the state of Alabama. The Senior Lifestyles Expo is an event held every year that targets this senior population. I was an exhibitor for the event that took place on October 4, 2017 in Baldwin County, AL. The event allowed me to demonstrate quality health resources from the National Library of Medicine and distribute print materials from various organizations exposing participants to a variety of reputable health resources from the National Institutes of Health, National Library of Medicine, and the National Institute on Aging.

Fenske, R. F. (Principal), Daw, A. (Co-Principal), Mayfield, A. (Co-Principal), "Technology Improvement Award #39 NNLM," Sponsored by University of Maryland, Baltimore/National Network of Library of Medicine, Federal, $5,000.00. (May 1, 2016 - April 30, 2017).

PATHS (Patient/Parent Access To Health Sources) Leading to Improved Health Outcomes will provide patients, parents and caregivers of those newly diagnosed with chronic and acute pediatric illnesses access to MedlinePlus, and other reputable health resources during the initial stages of education upon admission to the University of South Alabama Children's and Women's Hospital. This access will be provided across the continuum of care and will be available using Android tablets. Nurses, nurse educators, and child life specialists will supplement their initial education with the use of MedlinePlus as a means of locating easy to understand information on complex diseases and treatment plans free of medical jargon and in the language of their choice. Weekly instructional sessions will be provided by the outreach librarian to include additional training in MedlinePlus, Drug Information Portal, Clinical Trials.gov and Genetic Home Reference and other resources from NIH and NLM. Sessions to train health care professionals will also be held in the use of these databases. By providing access to easy to understand materials with the use of MedlinePlus at the beginning of the educational process and beyond will allow parents and caregivers to make better health decisions for their child, feel less stress when inundated with the amount and complexity of information to absorb and continue using these resources throughout their lifetime as other medical related circumstances arise.

Research Currently in Progress

Fenske, R. F., Pittman, J. "Best Practices in Simulation Nursing Education within the Maternal Child Health curriculum" (On-Going)

Engaged in a scoping review to find best practices in simulation nursing education at the undergraduate level within the maternal child health curriculum. This evidence is generated to comply with a HRSA grant that was awarded to the USA College of Nursing in 2023 and will help assist in curriculum redesign for the Fall 2024.

Fenske, R. F. "Evaluation of Tablet Computer Use in Patient Education" (On-Going)

A REDCap survey is used to gather statistics on tablet computer usage among all units of the USA Hospitals and clinics. With this data, subscription renewal of the X-Plain videos from Patient Education Institute can be justified and also allows the reallocation of tablets to other units if warranted.

This survey has now been replaced with the internal features of the X-Plain video software. Upgraded Fall 2022.

Fenske, R. F., Otts, J. "Graduate Nursing Students Comparison of Traditional and Generative AI Literature Search Tools" (On-Going)

This research question is: How do graduate nursing students compare a generative AI literature search tool, Elicit, to Pubmed and CINAHL. The purpose is to investigate graduate nursing students's critical thinking comparing the effectiveness of a generative AI literature search tool to PubMed and CINAHL. This research is in collaboration with Dr. Jo Ann Otts, CON faculty and aims to evaluate students' ability to identify strengths and weaknesses of each tool and to determine which tool is more effective in terms of accuracy, relevance and efficiency. We also aim to provide insight in the effectiveness of generative AI research tools in nursing and promote critical thinking in nursing students and future nurse leaders when selecting a literature search tool.

Fenske, R. F., Seifer, D. C. "Peer Champions for HIV/AIDS Education" (On-Going)

In collaboration with a nursing faculty from the University of Florida, this project would develop a peer health champion model for HIV/AIDS education among college students. The project would support the Ending the HIV Epidemic (EHE) Initiative set forth by the US Department of Health and Human Services and seek participation from the University of South Alabama, Florida State University, University of the Virgin Islands and the University of Puerto Rico. Students would be trained to become peer health champions for HIV/AIDS education to conduct peer vodcasts and podcasts in a virtual environment. Faculty members would serve as advisors. Students would be recruited from the disciplines of nursing, biomedical sciences, pre-professional health sciences, and biology. Campus Student Health Centers would be involved as referral sites for testing, potential PrEP distribution, consultation, and promotion of the project.

Fenske, R. F., Seifer, D. C. "Peer Educators at Two Universities Leverage Technology to Cultivate Conversations About HIV Testing and Prevention" (On-Going)

Abstract proposal for presentation to the Indiana University National HIV Conference was accepted. Presentation was June 9, 2022 in Indianapolis, IN.

Subsequent proposal was accepted as a poster presentation at the 2022 National Ryan White Conference on HIV Care and Treatment sponsored by Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) held Aug 23-26, 2022 in a virtual format.

Abstract: Student health centers collaborated with community partners including the Northeast/Caribbean AIDS Education and Training Center to equip peer educators with information and skills to interview expert HIV providers. The live interviews expanded student HIV knowledge in a relatable way. Project outcomes demonstrated increased HIV testing and ongoing "vodcast" viewing.
