

Short Bio:

Jessica Fairley is a South Alabama graduate who currently serves as manager of the Africatown Heritage House. Since graduating from South Alabama, she's worked in T.V. journalism, marketing, and production. Ms. Fairley also holds a Master of Communication Art from Valdosta State University. It's her goal to continually promote positive efforts in the Africatown community and educate the world about the story of the Clotilda and its 110 survivors.

Brief Abstract:

Clotilda: the Exhibition at the Africatown Heritage House is not just a story of a ship. It's a true tale of a people, a community, and America. The story of the journey of the 110 has come back to life, but although breathing, it's still on life support. The Africatown Heritage House is that lifeline. It's the start of a movement that is felt by everyone who tours the sacred grounds. Africatown is sacred ground. It is the gem of Mobile holding secrets yet to be discovered.

Jessica's photo is attached and the credit for it goes to James Finkley.

